MidwestTechTalk Awards
Camdenton R-III
The Annual Excellence Award

MidwestTechTalk, an organization made up of Missouri information technology professionals in the education field, awarded its 5th Annual Excellence Award to Camdenton R-III School District.

“This award goes to a department that goes above and beyond for their district,” said Eric Martin, conference planning committee member. Camdenton's IT department is very efficient and service oriented. Managing nearly 4700 devices, 13 buildings, 350 displays, 200 Windows devices, over 50 switches, 20 servers, and more, Camdenton's IT department does an excellent job ensuring teaching and learning takes place without interruption. The department is described as being team players who strive to meet the needs of both students and staff while displaying patience and understanding with all.

MidwestTechTalk made the announcement during its annual MidwestTechTalk Conference. The event took place at Osage High School in Osage Beach, Missouri. The conference had over 275 in attendance with representation from Missouri public schools, libraries, colleges, private schools, and also some from other states in the Midwest.

MidwestTechTalk is a highly technical two day conference event for school district IT departments.
